

Ya-Chuan Chou is currently a Lecturing Fellow in Chinese in the Department of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies at Duke University. She holds her Master Degree from Jinan University in Specialty of Linguistics and Applied Linguistics. Before joining Duke University in 2013, she worked in the Chinese Language Center at National Cheng Kung University since 2006.

Ya-Chuan is also experienced as an instructor in intensive summer programs. She worked as a Chinese instructor at Duke in Beijing in 2015 and she was the leading teacher of The Critical Language Scholarship Program (CLS-America) for intermediate level students in 2016 and 2017 at National Cheng Kung University in Tainan (Taiwan). Now she mainly teaches Chinese heritage students at beginner and intermediate levels and general intermediate levels for non-Chinese heritage students at Duke. How to elevate student's reading skills and motivation is her research interest and she presented some of her findings at conferences like ACTFL or CLTA.